

Cross-disciplinary Linguistics Scholarship

Application Deadline: Monday, March 5, 2018

The Cross-disciplinary Linguistics Scholarship is given annually to an undergraduate linguistics major with demonstrated skill and enthusiasm for linguistic theory and practice. This $250 award will go to a student whose academic career shows promise in leading to a future directly related to theoretical or applied linguistics. NOTE: Applicants must have at least 1 year left before graduating with their BA in Linguistics.

To apply, complete this form and attach a 2-3 page essay describing your interests in and goals for your study of linguistics, including any specific experience that is related to your study of linguistics. The selection of a recipient for the award will be made by a committee of faculty members from the Cross-disciplinary Linguistics Program whose selection will be based upon the submitted essay.

Completed application (including this page) should be submitted to 203 Ross Hall.
