

Quentin G. Johnson Award

Application Deadline: Monday, March 5, 2018

The Quentin Johnson Award is given annually in honor of Professor Johnson's commitment to the teaching of linguistics. The award is made to a student who has a strong academic record and who shows promise in the study of linguistics.

To apply, complete this form, the cover sheet, and attach all three of the following: (1) an expository essay written for an ISU linguistics course, (2) a separate essay explaining your interest in linguistics and the role your linguistics work is likely to play in your career, and (3) a brief (150–200 word) statement of financial need. The selection of a recipient will be made by a committee of linguistics faculty members from the Department of English and will be based on the clarity and effectiveness of the submitted essay as well as the evidence of aptitude in and commitment to the study of linguistics. In addition, some preference may be given to applicants with a demonstrated financial need.

Completed undergraduate applications (including this page and a form cover sheet) should be returned to an English undergraduate advisor, or taken to 203 Ross. Graduate submissions should be taken to 203 Ross Hall.
